It was a few days before Christmas, and the pups were practicing their song for the upcoming Adventure Bay Holiday Spectacular. Ryder stopped by to see how they were doing.

"Everyone sounds great!" Ryder said.

"Thanks," said Skye. "I just hope it snows."

"It will," said Rubble. "It always snows for the Holiday Spectacular!"

"It sure would be fun for our visitors!" said Ryder.

The next day, it still hadn't snowed. Jake said that every time he washed his truck, it rained. So the pups began washing his truck. Maybe that would make it snow! Just then, Tracker and Carlos arrived.

Tracker, who had never seen snow before, noticed the bucket of suds.
"Is that snow?" he asked. "Look at it . . . it's so white and fluffy. ¡Nieve! Snow!"
And before the pups could answer, he jumped right in!
"Tracker, wait!" Skye said. "That's not snow!"

Two days later, Mayor Goodway and her friends were preparing the stage for the Holiday Spectacular. Katie adjusted the lights and Mr. Porter delivered a carrot cake shaped like a snowman.

"Ha!" Mayor Humdinger said, pulling the carrot off the cake and taking a bite.
"Looks like your snow will be a no-show for your Christmas show!"

"It still may snow!" said Mayor Goodway. "Besides, we have a lot more than that. Yum-a-licious food and fabulous entertainment, plus the PAW Patrol will be performing an original song. And we'll have some very special guests. . . ."

Just then, Cap'n Turbot arrived with three friends from the South Pole. "I present to you the performing penguins: Pete, Peggy, and Poindexter!"

Cap'n Turbot fed the penguins some squid jerky, and they started performing their skating routine.

"Wonderful!" said Mr. Porter.

"Indeed," Mayor Humdinger said to himself. "And I could make a fortune with them."
