"I've had such fun today, Mickey!" exclaimed Minnie Mouse. "There's so much to do here at Walt Disney World—the rides, the shops, the movies, and, of course, the yummy snacks!"

"I had fun, too," Mickey said. "And I can't wait to lead the parade tonight! I'll get to wear my brand-new drum major's hat."

"Oh, yes," Minnie said. "You look great in that new hat, Mickey. Why don't you try it on right now?"

"Good idea," Mickey answered. "I have it right— Oh, no! Where could it be? I had it with me all day. I must have left it someplace."

"I can't lead the parade without my hat!" Mickey cried. "The drum major's hat is special. It has such bright colors and it matches my uniform—I just can't lead the parade without it!"

"I'll help you look," Minnie said.

"Gosh, thanks, Minnie," said Mickey.

"Come on. Our last stop was Space Mountain," Minnie said as they returned to Tomorrowland.

Mickey and Minnie held on as the rocket swooped around one high-speed curve after another.

"Wow! What a ride!" said Mickey. "But I don't see my hat."

Mickey and Minnie found their friend Donald Duck at their next stop—the Grand Prix Raceway.

“I haven’t seen your hat,” said Donald. “But I just saw Goofy, and he was wearing a new hat.”

“Thanks, anyway, Donald,” Mickey replied as his friend sped away.
