Sixteen dinosaurs showed up for a contest to see who is the roughest and toughest. If a dinosaur loses a fight, it is out of the contest. May the most ferocious dinosaur win!

No pterosaurs allowed!

No plesiosaurs allowed!

"I'm a flying reptile."

"I'm an ocean-going reptile."

DID YOU KNOW?
The word dinosaur means "terrible lizard."

The first match is Kentrosaurus versus Megalosaurus. Kentrosaurus would not be easy to attack or eat. It is spiky.

KENTROSAURUS VS. MEGALOSAURUS

NAME FACT
Megalosaurus means "big lizard."

Megalosaurus was the first dinosaur to be discovered and

Megalosaurus attacks with its toothy jaw but Kentrosaurus is too spiky, pointy, and humpy.

NAME FACT
Kentrosaurus means
"prickly lizard."

Megalosaurus puts up a good fight but it's out of the competition.

KENTROSAURUS WINS!

Ankylosaurus had a large, solid bump on the end of its tail. Its skin was heavily armored.

NAME FACT

The word "saurus" means lizard. Ankylosaurus means "fused lizard."

1

ANKYLOSAURUS VS. UTARAPTOR

2

Utahraptor stars in the film Jurassic World. This movie-star dinosaur was about 23 feet long, but only eight feet tall. That is about as tall as two first graders.

FUN FACT

Utahraptor means "Utah's predator."

Is this a fair fight? Ankylosaurus is covered in armor.

Utahraptor tries to sneak up on Ankylosaurus and slice its unprotected belly. But whoosh! One swipe from Ankylosaurus's tail and Utahraptor is knocked silly. Ankylosaurus moves on to the second round.

ANKYLOSAURUS WINS!

DID YOU KNOW?

Paleontologists now think the Utahraptor had feathers.
