Charlie Brown is sitting outside when his sister, Sally, walks by with an envelope.

“What is that?” he asks.

“I wrote a thank-you letter to Linus,” Sally replies.

“It says I’m thankful that he is my Sweet Babboo!”

Snoopy likes the idea of writing a thank-you letter. He doesn't have a "Sweet Babboo," but he knows exactly who he wants to thank.

Dear supper dish, writes Snoopy.
I am thankful for you.
I think of you night and day.

You are more precious to me
than anything in the world.

You are always there for me,
in the rain and in the snow.

We have been through
a lot together,
continues Snoopy.

Do you remember when I took you
to a baseball game?

You helped me catch the ball
in the ninth inning!

Do you remember the day we were almost late for supper?
writes Snoopy.

You let me ride you like a sled
so we could get home in time!

The best part, of course,
is the food we have shared
together.

Hot dogs, popcorn,
doughnuts, dog food,
and my favorite . . .
doggie treats!

Thank you for being such a good pal to share a meal with.
Your friend,
Snoopy
